

SERVICE OVERVIEW

Tax law is notoriously one of the most complex areas of law, and if you are involved in a dispute with the IRS for back taxes or penalties it can be even more challenging. Unlike other debts, it is difficult to get rid of tax debts through bankruptcy. And avoiding the IRS isn't going to help, especially as the IRS becomes more aggressive with its investigations and audits.

Our firm can help you find the best way to resolve your tax disputes. Examples of services available to reach a favorable IRS outcome include:

- Entering into payment agreements
- Obtaining IRS agreement to an offer in compromise
- Negotiating the release of federal tax liens and levies
- Filing innocent spouse claims
- Other creative solutions

Every situation is different, which is why it's best to talk to a tax attorney immediately – the easiest way to do this is contact our firm and schedule a no-cost consultation with our tax attorney.

TAKE ACTION TODAY

Even if you're not facing immediate action from the IRS, don't wait until it's too late. Knowledge is power; it only makes sense to talk to a tax attorney, so you know what to expect. With the right advice, you can take action today that might help you avoid bigger problems tomorrow.

Once the IRS believes you have an overdue tax liability, they send you a series of notices or demands. If you don't pay your tax debt within a matter of days, you could be facing an IRS lien. Once the IRS files a lien against you, you may not be able to obtain credit. This could affect your ability to get credit cards, car loans, a mortgage and can even affect security clearances and rental applications. Further, the IRS can levy your bank accounts, wages, and more.
