

Payroll Tax Representation

SERVICE OVERVIEW

Failing to properly file and pay payroll taxes is a serious matter. If an employer fails to timely file and pay payroll taxes, the IRS is authorized to collect these taxes from the business or even a person or persons who are responsible for withholding and paying these payroll taxes to the IRS. The IRS typically utilizes Revenue Officers to work on collecting payroll taxes and to investigate the financial health of the business. Failure to correct a delinquent payroll tax matter could result in the closure of your business and liquidation of your business assets.

Our firm can help you find the best way to resolve your payroll tax issues. Examples of services available to reach a favorable IRS outcome include:

- Entering into payment agreements
- Obtaining a release from TFRP liability or exposure for non-responsible parties
- Negotiating the release of federal tax liens and levies
- Helping to avoid TFRP interview pitfalls
- Other creative solutions

TAKE ACTION TODAY

If you owe delinquent IRS Payroll Taxes, the IRS can and will be very aggressive in its collection attempts. And the penalties the IRS can assess to a liability can drastically increase the amount owed in a very short period of time. Failure to make timely deposits is a large portion of these penalties. And, not only is your business at risk, but you may be personally liable for any or all IRS Payroll Taxes owed. If the IRS determines the business cannot pay its past due taxes, they will then focus on any individuals who the IRS deems responsible.

Every situation is different, which is why it's best to talk to a tax attorney immediately – the easiest way to do this is contact our firm and schedule a no-cost consultation with our tax attorney.
